The village needs 700 000 gallons a day for drinking, washing, creet sprinking and washing purposes, and the loss of the river water was felt severely.
To make matters worse, the pump at the reservoir broke down. Then the Company tried to fill up the boiler at the artesian well, and that broke too.
Many of the residents have been notified that their water sunnly must be out off. The village was left to rely upon the reservoir that their water supply must be cut off. The Mount Vernon Water Company is blamed to
